BoardSource Welcomes Mark Shamley to its Board of Directors

Washington, D.C. – BoardSource is pleased to announce that Mark Shamley, president and CEO of The Association of Corporate Contributions Professionals (ACCP), has been elected to its board of directors.

“Mark Shamley is an industry leader in corporate social responsibility with a long history of connecting business and community through philanthropy,” said Anne Wallestad, BoardSource president and CEO. “His experience building and supporting strategic partnerships between nonprofits and corporations will be a tremendous asset to BoardSource, especially given our growing work with corporations that are building nonprofit board service programs into their strategies for philanthropic giving and employee engagement. We are thrilled to welcome Mark to our board of directors.”

Shamley has more than 20 years of experience in public affairs, corporate social responsibility, and business development. In 2007, he was named president and CEO of ACCP, an organization dedicated to integrating increased philanthropy with business goals. Before joining ACCP, Shamley leveraged his position as executive at two major organizations to support youth services, managing The Orlando Magic Youth Foundation and serving as vice president and executive director of the Tupperware Children’s Foundation. Also during his time at Tupperware, he was instrumental in creating the organization’s global charitable recognition program and volunteer programs. He is currently a board member of the Boys & Girls Clubs of Central Florida and the BBB Wise Giving Alliance.

“BoardSource’s mission is to support nonprofit organizations in building thoughtful and strategic boards that bring together the skills and backgrounds they need to achieve their missions,” said John Griswold, chair of BoardSource’s board of directors. “And that’s the same approach that we bring to our own board. Mark’s passion, expertise, and experience make him an ideal candidate to advance and champion our work, and I am excited to welcome him to the board of directors.”
